Three Incidents Prompt Reminder on Safety, Reporting of Threats

In one case, classmates reported a potential threat to their instructor. Staff initiated response in two additional incidents.

Three on-campus incidents in a one-week period prompted police response and have provided a stark reminder that safety is the responsibility of everyone on campus. None of the incidents resulted in injury.

The three incidents involved: an upset student suggesting a school shooting; a reportedly suicidal student with a knife; and a student who informed staff that he was going to return to campus with a bomb.

Because we take safety seriously, we are requesting that faculty discuss this information with students. Everyone should know that we will act to preserve safety.

Cypress College officials worked in conjunction with the Cypress Police Department, in each incident. One student was arrested. Investigation in the other case involving a threat is ongoing. Disciplinary procedures have also begun with both students who made threats.

In each instance where the College is informed of a threat, we treat the report with great seriousness in an effort to provide for the safety of our students, employees and visitors.

We ask that each member of the campus community do the same. That is, if you hear someone make a threat or observe something of a potentially threatening nature, you are asked to report this information to Campus Safety without hesitation.

None of us should individually make the determination that a threat is not credible and thus not worthy of being reported.

One of the threats only came to light because classmates took the initiative to inform campus officials. Responses to the two others were initiated by staff.

Campus Safety can be reached at (714) 484-7387. Every member of the campus community should program this number into their mobile phones so it is handy.

In the case of an immediate threat, you should dial 911 and ask someone nearby to simultaneously contact Campus Safety. This will greatly aid in establishing an efficient response.

Cypress College has a long-standing tradition of progressive incident-response training. This includes a regular series of drills and collaborative initiatives with local law enforcement and other response agencies.

Incidents such as these deepen our resolve to be fully prepared. As the college does after each drill, a debrief has been held, as has a tabletop exercise. Measures were also enacted to improve our communication, response and collaboration.

Anaheim's Bruno Serato Selected as Americana Man of the Year for 2012

When Bruno Serato came to America three decades ago, he had $200 in his pocket, virtually no knowledge of the English language, and made a living by washing dishes in a restaurant. His is the quintessential American success story — not simply for his success in owning one of Orange County’s most highly regarded restaurants, but for his inspiring dedication to serving the community.

IR&P Report: Census Enrollment at 15,889

At the Fall 2011 census date, Cypress College enrolled 15,889 students. This is a decrease of 3% from last fall caused by a reduction in the number of courses offered of 5%, compared to a year ago.

Although 65 fewer sections were offered this fall, each section served the same average number of students — approximately 35. Thus, even with a slight decline in enrollment the College has maintained its efficiency in instruction. To achieve this efficiency, the College was operating with a triple-digit fill rate at census. Fill rate, which compares the total number of students in classes to the scheduled number of available seats, provided a standard way to measure the efficiency of the College’s course scheduling.

This semester, almost 70% of Cypress College students are from traditionally under-represented ethnic groups. The percentages of African Americans, Asians, and Hispanics at Cypress College continue to be higher than the percentages of Orange County residents when compared to 2009 U.S. Census Population Estimates.

Already designated as a federally recognized Hispanic Serving Institution, and a two-time Title V grant recipient, Cypress College’s Hispanic student population continues to grow, as well. In Fall 2007, 27% of enrolled students were Hispanic, while 36% of Cypress College students are Hispanic in this fall.

Hispanics comprise the College’s single-largest ethnic group, followed by Caucasian, at 27%, and Asian/Pacific Islander at 19%.

A large proportion of students (41%) indicated that they are among the first generation of their family to attend college. Almost a quarter of Cypress College students had a parent attend college, but never receive a diploma. Another quarter came from a family in which a parent had at least a Bachelor degree.

The number of “reverse transfers” and students concurrently enrolled at other colleges and universities is also reported in the latest demographics:

- Almost 800 students previously attended a California State University, such as: Fullerton, Long Beach, Pomona, Los Angeles, and Dominguez Hills;
- Over 230 Cypress students have attended UC campuses, including: Irvine, Riverside, Los Angeles, San Diego, and Santa Barbara;
- In all, almost 230 colleges/universities were identified as the last college of attendance for our students. This indicates that they are concurrently enrolled at several community colleges, are degree holders who are seeking re-training for new careers, upgrading of skills, or seeking life-long learning opportunities; and
- These “colleges of last attendance” include many California Community College campuses, with Fullerton, Cerritos, Long Beach, Golden West, and Orange Coast accounting for over 2,177 Cypress students.

Cypress College students are studying more than 365 different majors; the top majors this fall are: General Studies (2,065); Registered Nursing (1,443); Liberal Arts/Studies (1,082); Business Administration (878); and Psychology (564).

In addition to these student demographic and enrollment trends, the Institutional Research and Planning website provides reports on staff demographic trends, campus climate, student satisfaction, planning documents, and information from the most-recent accreditation.

Because of his efforts, Serato has been selected as the 2012 Americana Man of the Year by the Cypress College Foundation. He will be honored at the Americana Awards on February 25, 2012 — the latest in a string of accolades that includes being named as a CNN Hero earlier this year.

Serato purchased the famous Anaheim White House Restaurant in 1987, which he has used to serve award-winning cuisine and utilize as a platform to serve the community, both literally and figuratively.

A decade ago, he became an American citizen; two years later, he was an Americana Citizen of the Year from Anaheim.

“I want to help as much as possible. I want to do more. My mother always told me, ‘never forget where you came from,’” he said when he was honored by Cypress College in 2003. “I have everything I want – I don’t need anything else. Now, it is my turn to help others.”

Serato’s philanthropy has gone to new heights since his earlier Americana Award.

The honor was one he was clearly proud of, as is evidenced by this inclusion in his biography:

His philanthropic efforts have raised nearly $1 million for various endeavors and earned him a regional distinction of which he is particularly proud, “Citizen of the Year” by the Cypress College Foundation and presented by the City of Anaheim.

Among the organizations that he supports are: the Boys and Girls Clubs of Anaheim; Paint Your Heart Out, an organization that renovates the homes of the elderly and infirmed; and Caterina’s Girls Club, which Serato founded in honor of his mother to benefit underprivileged girls in Anaheim. As recently as last week, Serato’s philanthropy continued to make headlines.

For nearly a half-million students, Cypress College has been a springboard to their dreams. Cypress College: Motivating Minds.

ANAHEIM — White House Restaurant owner Bruno Serato held a contest this summer to give away 12 lunches — each valued at $4,000 — to charities to help them raise money.

But Serato was so touched by the applications that he announced Wednesday night to a restaurant full of applicants that virtually every nonprofit organization that applied was a winner.

In the end, he gave away 200 lunches, valued at a total of at least $800,000. In addition to being named a hero by the cable news giant, his work was also profiled on the CBS Evening News.

Salute to Student Success

The purpose of the Cypress College Foundation Golf Classic is to further the college’s core work of education. In that pursuit, the Foundation raises funds to support a multitude of programs—all aimed at supporting student success. In the past year alone, the Cypress College Foundation distributed $300,000 in student scholarships and other direct student assistance, provided textbook loans to 75 students, and made 12 faculty grants/awards—all of which contribute to student success. In addition, by growing its endowment to over $1,000,000, the Foundation has positioned itself to support Cypress College students well into the future. We are proud of our dedicated students and salute the inspiring examples they set.
